AND THE BEST PART WAS...

"While evaluating HES's Digital Media Design graduate degree program against other degree programs offered by various universities, Harvard stood out immediately. Harvard's academic standards, reputation in computer science teaching, international recognition, and strong alum network were all factors that caught my attention. Additionally, the program's requirement of attending on-campus classes at Harvard University particularly appealed to me. This requirement would allow me to fully immerse myself in the student experience and feel like a genuine member of the Harvard community."
