AND THE BEST PART WAS...

💡 My expectations of a remote study graduate program at Harvard was that it would be a self-directed and more independent learning experience in which I would be expected to 'figure it out.' This has turned out not to be the case. In both of my admission classes, I've been extremely impressed by the 'extra mile' that the professors have gone to ensure student success. I've found the students to be an incredibly engaged and supportive group and am really enjoying the sense of community that is building."
